Parent and Teacher Guide

Studies have proven learning is enhanced through the use of several senses. A recent study shows that we retain 10 percent of what we see, 20 percent of what we hear, and 50 percent of what we see and hear. But when we see, hear and do, we retain 90 percent of the information.

(Lisa Marie Nelson, Ph.D., Author “The Healthy Family Handbook”).

The purpose of this Resource & Activity Book is to help children learn and retain the story theme and principles in a fun and educational way. Your children will love coloring pages, solving puzzles, matching games, completing word searches, and much more! Each Resource & Activity Book also features challenging questions and activities for children from preschool through middle school. And in the rare case you don’t know an answer, there’s an answer key in the back!

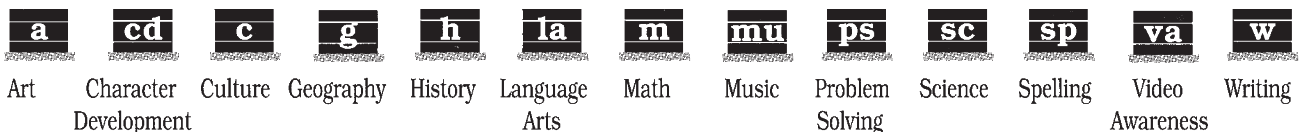

LEVEL OF DIFFICULTY

The activities in this book are designed in three levels of difficulty designated by symbols. The activities with one symbol are geared towards younger children while the activities with two and three symbols become increasingly challenging for older children.

CURRICULUM RELATED

These educational activities are related to various educational discipline such as social studies (geography, history, culture), language arts (spelling, creative writing, grammar, literature), math (simple equations), and science. There are also activities for character development, video awareness, problem solving, music, and art. The subject codes below are for your convenience.

Flag

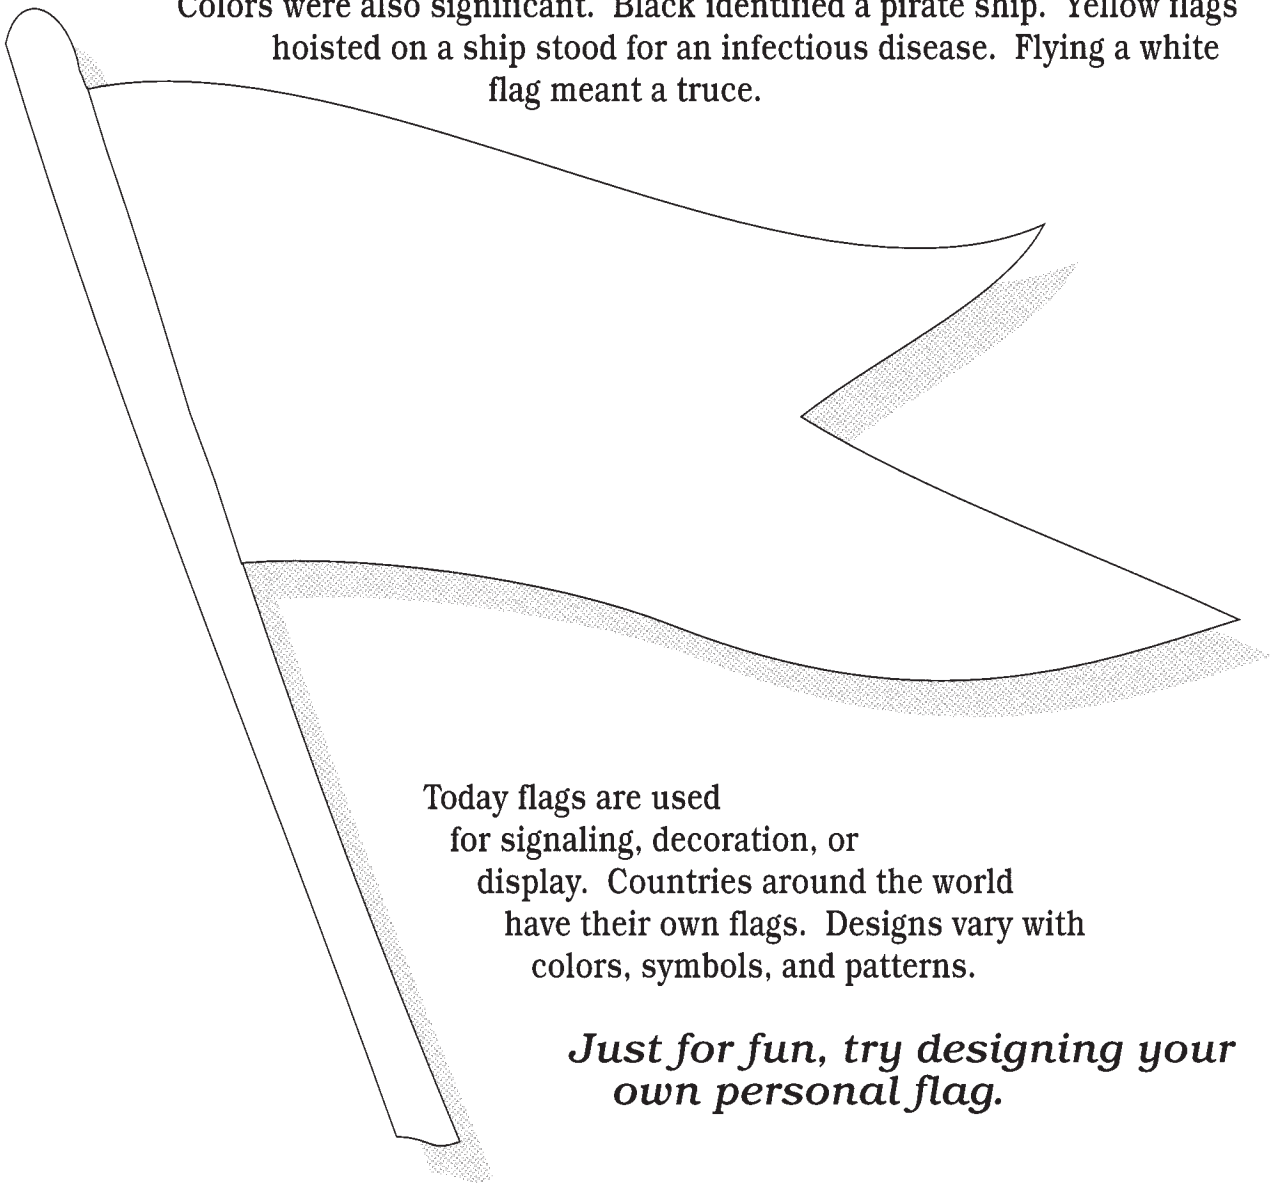

Fun!

Joan of Arc had two flags or banners specially made for her. One was her personal flag. The other was her company's flag. Another word for flag is standard.

Carrying banners and flags can be traced back almost certainly to the ancient Indians or Chinese. Flags were always carried during wars and identified friends and foes. They were also used as rallying points. Symbols stood for different things, such as a lion for strength and courage and an eagle for power or keen vision.

Colors were also significant. Black identified a pirate ship. Yellow flags hoisted on a ship stood for an infectious disease. Flying a white flag meant a truce.

Today flags are used for signaling, decoration, or display. Countries around the world have their own flags. Designs vary with colors, symbols, and patterns.

Just for fun, try designing your own personal flag.

Find the KING

When Prince Charles, the rightful king of France, was going to meet Joan of Arc for the first time, he wanted to test her to see if she could pick him out of a crowd. If she could identify him, then he would believe she had received special messages from the angels.

The word "king" appears 12 times in the sentences below. Can you find the word "king" hidden among the letters? Circle the letters.

Joan of Arc was a young girl from the countryside. She did her chores around the farm-things like milking cows and feeding the chickens. Working on a farm was not easy work. In growing up on the farm, Joan learned that life can be difficult.

One day, Joan heard voices from heaven talking to her. The voices told her to help fight for the freedom of France. They also told her to see that Prince Charles was anointed and crowned the rightful King of France. As soon as she heard the voices, she went to Prince Charles.

The Prince thought she was making up a story. "Did she really hear voices, or is she simply faking?" asked the Prince. He decided to test her. Taking off his royal robes and dressing as a servant, he hid in a crowd of people. If Joan had special powers, she should be able to identify him. Looking around the room, Joan soon spotted the future King of France. Joan had passed the test. The Prince was convinced. And so he made Joan a commander in his army. Seeking to serve God, Joan obeyed the message she had been given. She spent the rest of her days fighting for the freedom of France. She also saw Charles anointed and crowned King of France.

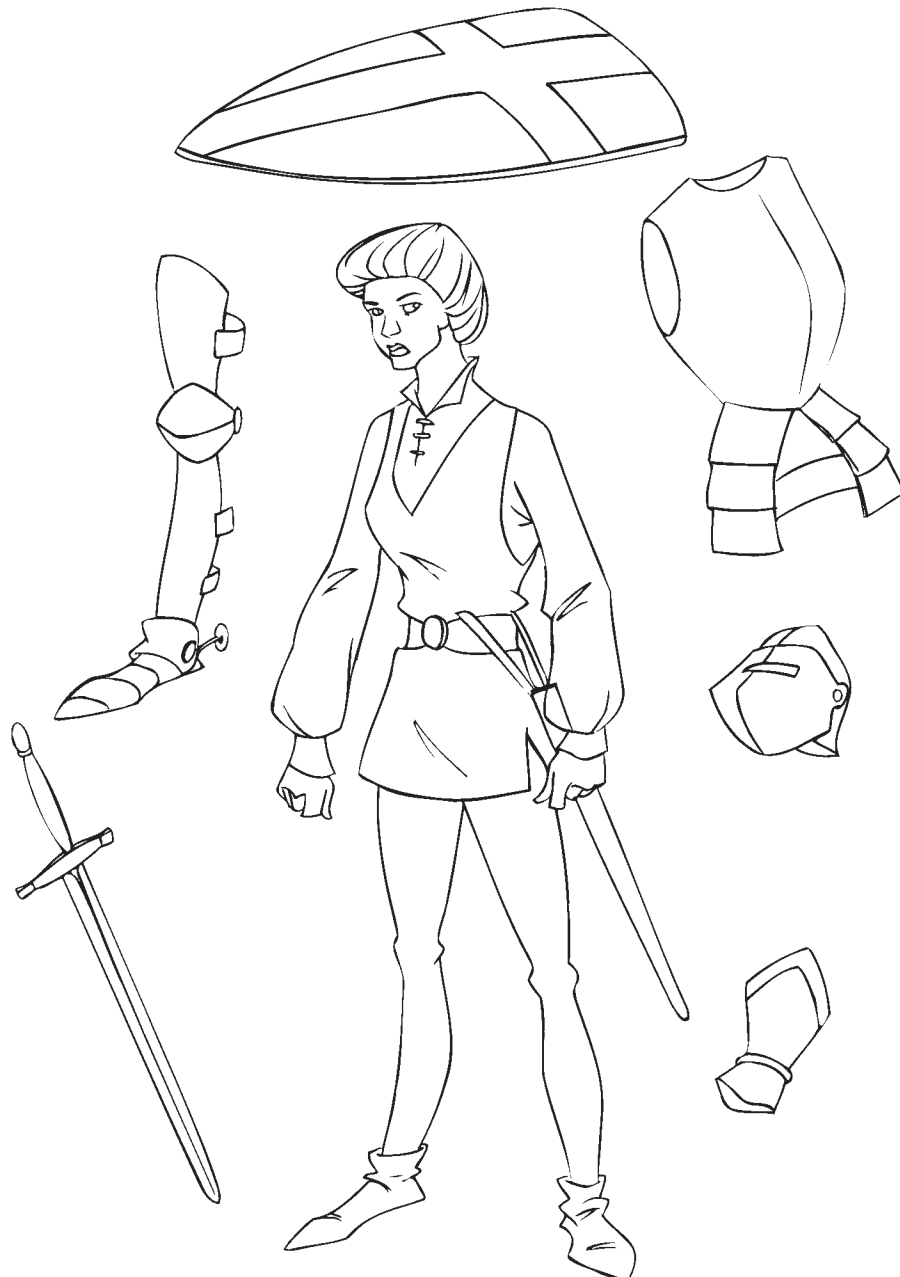

“I take no stock in silly French prophecies about silly French maidens!” exclaims the English commander.

Arrayed in Armor

Joan of Arc was given armor to wear while in battle. Draw a line from the pieces of armor to the place it belongs on Joan.

On Wednesday, May 9th, in the year 1431, Joan of Arc was brought into the great tower of the Castle of Rouen to stand trial. She was found guilty, although she insisted that her visions and voices had come from angels. Joan was sentenced to death. She was burned at the stake before a large mob on May 30, 1431.

In 1453, King Charles re-opened Joan's case. At this new and fair trial, Joan was found to be innocent of all charges brought against her.

King Charles signs a truce with England.

Before Joan of Arc went to battel to help France win its freedom, France was in trubble. Charles VI was a very weak king. His wife, Queen Isabella, was very decietful. Many people tried to take over the throne, but Charles was the only one the peopul of France accepted as king. That was because Charles had been anointed with holy oil and crowned by the cherch. It was at this time that the yung King of England, Henry V, invaded France. He renewwed a war that had been going on for one hunderd years. When Charles VI died, his son was suppossed to be king, but the son had been disinherited by his own mother! Joan of Arc fought to bring Prince Charles to his riteful place as king and send the English back to England!

THINGS TO THINK ABOUT & DO

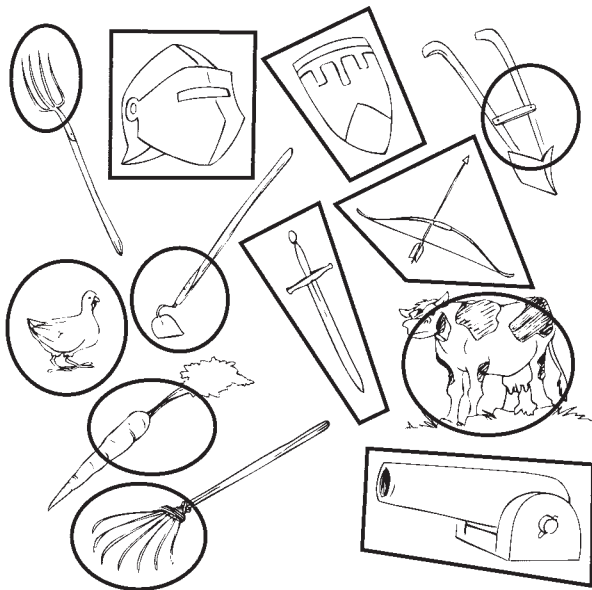

NOTE TO THE TEACHER: These are activities for group discussion with additional projects to go along with the story of Joan of Arc.

1. After the victories, anointing, and crowning of King Charles VII, Joan said she wanted to go home to see her mother and father. She wanted to tend the sheep with her sister and brother. Instead, she stayed to lead in more battles against England. How do you think the story would have ended if she had gone home?
2. Would Joan of Arc have the name in history that she has if she had gone home? Why do you think she didn't go?
3. If your best friend told you that he or she was hearing voices, what would you think? What would you do?
4. Make a banner using the same colors and objects as Joan of Arc's banner. Her banner had a white background with a picture of God holding the world and an angel kneeling at each side. The words Jesus Maria were written on it and the field of it was "sown with lilies."
5. Create your own personal banner, standard, or coat of arms. Use either poster board or cloth. Think of ways to display things that describe you. Show your nationality, hobbies, favorite colors, and interests. You may either draw or paint them on your banner or use cut-outs to paste. Be creative!

The Prince thought she was maKING up a story. "Did she really hear voices, or is she simply faKING?" asked the Prince. He decided to test her. TaKING off his royal robes and dressing as a servant, he hid in a crowd of people. If Joan had special powers, she should be able to identify him. LookKING around the room, Joan soon spotted the future KING of France. Joan had passed the test. The Prince was convinced. And so he made Joan a commander in his army. SeeKING to serve God, Joan obeyed the message she had been given. She spent the rest of her days fighting for the freedom of France. She also saw Charles anointed and crowned KING of France.

The year is 1429. France clings desperately to independence as English invaders advance into French territory. Just as the city of Orleans seems certain to fall, a 16-year-old maiden from Lorraine rises out of nowhere and through sheer, bold faith rallies her countrymen to a surprising victory. Yet the celebration is short-lived; through treachery the English kidnap the girl, brand her a witch, and burn her at the stake. And so is born the astonishing-but-true tale of Joan of Arc.
